

Vincente took the piece of metalwork off Barnaby, turned it over in his hands and stared at it for a minute or two before walking towards the window and examining it closer in the bright sunlight that was pouring through. He muttered something under his breath, then ran his fingers along the iron and wood before shaking his head in wonder.

"Exquisite," he said, returning.

"Simply exquisite. Did you "No," said Barnaby, "I found it in the window of the old house."
